Analysis of Infectious Disease Problems (Covid-19) and Their Global Impact Praveen Agarwal 2021 This edited volume is a collection of selected research articles discussing the analysis of infectious diseases by using mathematical modelling in recent times. Divided into two parts, the book gives a general and country-wise analysis of Covid-19. Analytical and numerical techniques for virus models are presented along with the application of mathematical modelling in the analysis of their spreading rates and treatments. The book also includes applications of fractional differential equations as well as ordinary, partial and integrodifferential equations with optimization methods. Probability distribution and their bio-mathematical applications have also been studied. This book is a valuable resource for researchers, scholars, biomathematicians and medical experts.

Morocco International Monetary Fund. Middle East and Central Asia Dept. 2016-02-08 The 2015 Article IV Consultation discusses key issues related to the economic growth of Morocco. The macroeconomic situation of Morocco continues to improve. Although growth is recovering and should reach 4.7 percent in 2015, nonagricultural activity remains sluggish and inflation remains low. In 2016, growth will be affected by a base effect following the very good 2015 agricultural season, but a gradual recovery is expected in 2017. Although recent policy action and a more favorable external environment have yielded macroeconomic improvements, the reform needs to be maintained to secure longer-term stability and raise growth potential. Much remains to be done to secure higher and more inclusive growth. De twaalf zuilen van Israël Mark Heirman 2001

Loanwords in the World's Languages Martin Haspelmath 2009 This landmark publication in comparative linguistics is the first comprehensive work to address the general issue of what kinds of words tend to be borrowed from other languages. The authors have assembled a unique database of over 70,000 words from 40 languages from around the world, 18,000 of which are loanwords. This database (<http://loanwords.info>) allows the authors to make empirically founded generalizations about general tendencies of word exchange among languages.

Migration and Environmental Change in Morocco Lore Van Praag 2021-05-10

This open access book studies the migration aspirations and trajectories of people living in two regions in Morocco that are highly affected by environmental change or emigration, namely Tangier and Tinghir, as well as the migration trajectories of immigrants coming from these regions currently living in Belgium. This book departs from the development of a new theoretical framework on the relationship between environmental changes and migration that can be applied to the Moroccan case. Qualitative research conducted in both countries demonstrate how the interplay between migration and environmental factors is not as straightforward as it seems, due to its wider social, political, economic, demographic and environmental context. Findings show how existing cultures of migration, remittances, views on nature and discourses on climate change create distinct abilities, capacities and aspirations to migrate due to environmental changes. The results illustrate how migration and environmental factors evolve gradually and mutually influence each other. In doing so, this book offers new insights in the ways migration can be seen as an adaptation strategy to deal with environmental change in Morocco.

In Search of Structural Power Patrick Holden 2016-05-23 Offering a clear and logical analysis of the panoply of European Union aid policies and a theoretically informed evaluation of their operation, Patrick Holden contends that the major thrust of EU aid policy is an effort to augment the EU's structural power through targeted political and economic liberalization. Although historically grounded, this book concentrates on EU aid to key world regions in the 21st century. As such, it provides a comprehensive and thought-provoking account of EU aid policy and will be of interest to a wide range of academics, students and policy makers.

Infrastructure in Africa Ncube, Mthuli 2017-03-31 Good infrastructure is essential for socio-economic growth and sustainable development. Safe and accessible water supplies, reliable energy, good transport networks and communications technology are all vital to a region's development agenda. This book presents a comprehensive exploration of the state of infrastructure in Africa and provides an integrated analysis of the challenges the sector faces, based on extensive fieldwork across the continent. Contributors with a wide range of expertise challenge current policy, practice and thinking on issues including the politics of infrastructure development, social inclusion, domestic resource mobilisation and infrastructure financing. The book will be an important resource for academic researchers, students and early career development professionals as well as policymakers and NGOs engaged in dialoguing the infrastructure development options for Africa.

Theory and Applications of Time Series Analysis Olga Valenzuela 2020-11-20 This book presents a selection of peer-reviewed contributions on the latest advances in time series analysis, presented at the International Conference on Time Series and Forecasting (ITISE 2019), held in Granada, Spain, on September 25-27, 2019. The first two parts of the book present theoretical contributions on statistical and advanced mathematical methods, and on econometric models, financial forecasting and risk analysis. The remaining four parts include practical contributions on time series analysis in energy; complex/big data time series and forecasting; time series analysis with computational intelligence; and time series analysis and prediction for other real-world problems. Given this mix of topics, readers will acquire a more comprehensive perspective on the field of time series analysis and forecasting. The ITISE conference series provides a forum for scientists, engineers, educators and students to discuss the latest advances and implementations in the foundations, theory, models and applications of time series analysis and forecasting. It focuses on interdisciplinary research encompassing computer science, mathematics, statistics and econometrics.

The Will of Change Eva-Maria Maggi 2015-10-13 In this book, Eva-Maria Maggi argues that the European Union (EU) had an impact on institutional reform processes in North Africa in cases where major domestic actors agreed. She analyzes how political actors in Morocco used EU neighborhood policies to shape economic and environmental policy between 1995 and 2008. Maggi argues that it was not the design of the EU's neighborhood policies but rather the will of change of domestic actors in Morocco that determined the pace, direction of reform and the extent to which the EU continues to play a role in them. While Moroccan politics were indeed "europeanized" Maggi highlights the role of domestic actors who so effectively managed to put forth their own policy priorities and essentially "moroccanized" the ENP.

North Africa 2030 Karim Mezran
2021-11-16 Over ten years after the “Arab Spring”, the turmoil that swept across North Africa has taken many forms, bringing about change, although not always in a desirable direction. But the Arab uprisings have also brought about a surprising amount of “more of the same”: a decade on, the problems that plagued the region in 2010 have not gone away. This report looks at the future of the region, asking: what will North Africa be in 2030? Which direction could the region as a whole, and specific countries, take, and which challenges will they have to face? And what are the implications for Europe and the US?

Hawaiian National Bibliography, 1780-1900 David W. Forbes 2001-11-30
Volume 3 comprises entries recording the last years of the rule of Kamehameha III, the reigns of Kamehameha IV, Kamehameha V, and Lunalilo, and the first seven years of the Kalakaua era. During this period government was firmly established as a constitutional monarchy. Following the successful negotiation by the Kalakaua government of a reciprocity treaty with the United States in 1875, Hawai'i experienced great prosperity. At the same time, however, it came under increasing economic and social domination by American interests.

From the City to the Desert Raffael Beier 2019-08-23 In recent years, large-scale housing and resettlement projects have experienced a renaissance in many developing countries and are increasingly shaping new urban peripheries. One prominent example is Morocco's Villes Sans Bidonville (cities without shantytowns) programme that aims at eradicating all shantytowns in Morocco by resettling its population to apartment blocks at the urban peripheries. Analysing the specific resettlement project of Karyan Central, a 90-year-old shantytown in Casablanca, this book sheds light on both process and outcome of resettlement from the perspective of affected people. It draws on rich empirical data from a structure household survey (n=871), qualitative interviews with different stakeholder, document analysis, and non-participant observation gathered during four months of field research. The author emphasises that the VSB programme, although formally part of anti-poverty and urban inclusion policies, puts primary focus on the clearance of the shantytown. Largely based on ill-informed policy assumptions, stigmatisation, rent-seeking, and opaque implementation practices, the VSB programme interpreted adequate housing in a narrow sense. By showing how social interactions, employment patterns, and access to urban functions have changed because of resettlement, the book provides sound empirical evidence that housing means more than four walls and a roof.

Agriculture in an Urbanizing Society Volume One Rob Roggema 2016-11-14 In two volumes, selected papers presented at the sixth AESOP conference on Sustainable Food Planning are brought together, representing the academic work of worldwide experts in the fields of food planning and urban agriculture. Use of Satellite and In-Situ Data to Improve Sustainability Felix Kogan 2011-01-18 More than 30-year operational satellite data have already been used for monitoring land, ocean and atmosphere. These applications have contributed to improve sustainable economy, produce healthy environment and enhance human life. The Advanced Research Workshop sponsored by NATO and organized by the USA's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and Ukrainian's Space Agency bring the scientists with the most mature research designed for practical use. The goals were to select those which is used for services today and identify the areas to expand research and services. Scientific and application results of the Workshop presented in this book can be used today in agriculture, forestry, water resources, healthy coastal life and fisheries, climate and land cover change, anthropogenic activities and others. The presented papers provide information on how to use operational satellites and in situ measurements for early detection of large-scale droughts, floods and fires, diagnose crop and pasture annual losses, predict periods with health/unhealthy vegetation based on such climate forcing events as ENSO, monitor air quality and geomagnetic activities, assess land cover trends in response to global warming etc. The available satellite/ground information and method is currently warn with a lead time sufficient to respond, recover and protect.

Jobs for Shared Prosperity Roberta Gatti 2013-04-25 In the aftermath of the Arab Spring, when thousands of young women and men fought for the opportunity to realize their aspirations and potential, the question of jobs continues to be crucial in the Middle East and North Africa region. This report uses jobs as a lens to weave together the complex dynamics of employment creation, skills supply, and the institutional environment of labor markets. Consistent with the framework of the 2013 World Development Report on jobs, of which this report is the regional companion, this work goes beyond the traditional links between jobs, productivity, and living standards to include an understanding of how jobs matter for individual dignity and expectations—an aspect that was clearly central to the Arab Spring. Just as important, this report complements the economic perspective with an analysis of political economy equilibrium, with a view to identifying mechanisms that would trigger a reform process. As such, the report has three objectives: First, it seeks to provide an in-depth characterization of the dynamics of labor markets in the Middle East and North Africa and to analyze the barriers to the creation of more and better jobs. It does so by taking a cross-sectoral approach and identifying the distortions and incentives that the many actors—firms, governments, workers, students, education, and training systems—currently face, and which ultimately determine the equilibrium in labor markets. Second, the report proposes a medium term roadmap of policy options that could promote the robust and inclusive growth needed to tackle the structural employment challenge for the region. Third, the report aims to inform and open up a platform for debate on jobs among a broad set of stakeholders, with the ultimate goal of contributing to reach a shared view of the employment challenges and the reform path ahead.

A Dictionary of Moroccan Arabic
Richard Slade Harrell 2004 A Dictionary of Moroccan Arabic presents, in a range, the core vocabulary of everyday life in Morocco - from the kitchen to the mosque, from the hardware store to the natural world of plants and animals. It contains myriad examples of usage, including formulaic phrases and idiomatic expressions.

Understandable throughout the nation, it is based primarily on the standard dialect of educated Moroccans from the cities of Fez, Rabat, and Casablanca. All Arabic citations are in an English transcription, making it invaluable to English-speaking non-Arabists, travelers, and tourists - as well as being an important resource tool for students and scholars in the Arabic language-learning field.

Reel Bad Arabs Jack G. Shaheen
2012-12-31 A groundbreaking book that dissects a slanderous history dating from cinema's earliest days to contemporary Hollywood blockbusters that feature machine-gun wielding and bomb-blowing "evil" Arabs Award-winning film authority Jack G. Shaheen, noting that only Native Americans have been more relentlessly smeared on the silver screen, painstakingly makes his case that "Arab" has remained Hollywood's shameless shorthand for "bad guy," long after the movie industry has shifted its portrayal of other minority groups. In this comprehensive study of over one thousand films, arranged alphabetically in such chapters as "Villains," "Sheikhs," "Cameos," and "Cliffhangers," Shaheen documents the tendency to portray Muslim Arabs as Public Enemy #1-brutal, heartless, uncivilized Others bent on terrorizing civilized Westerners. Shaheen examines how and why such a stereotype has grown and spread in the film industry and what may be done to change Hollywood's defamation of Arabs.

The Food of Morocco Paula Wolfert

2012-01-01 Paula Wolfert's name is synonymous with revealing the riches of authentic Mediterranean cooking, especially the cuisine of Morocco. In The Food of Morocco, she brings to bear more than forty years of experience of, love of, and original research on the traditional food of that country. The result is the definitive book on Moroccan cuisine, from tender Berber skillet bread to spiced hariria (the classic soup made with lentils and chickpeas), from chicken with tangy preserved lemon and olives to steamed sweet and savoury breast of lamb stuffed with couscous and dates. The recipes are clear and inviting, and infused with the author's unparalleled knowledge of this delicious food. Essays illuminate the essential elements of Moroccan flavour and emphasise the accessibility of once hard-to-find ingredients such as saffron, argan oil and Moroccan cumin seed.

Naar een modern Marokko? In welke mate is Marokko aan het evolueren van een ontwikkelingsland naar een moderne democratische staat? Karen Raeymaekers 2012 Is Marokko aan het evolueren van een ontwikkelingsland naar een moderne, democratische staat? Gebaseerd op de kenmerken van ontwikkelingslanden opgesteld door Michael P. Todaro kan er besloten worden dat Marokko nog steeds een ontwikkelingsland is. Het land is echter wel op de goede weg in de transitie naar een moderne staat. Koning Mohammed VI wil duidelijk een nieuwe richting uit en toont interesse in de noden van alle groepen van de samenleving. De accenten hierbij worden gelegd op democratie en mensenrechten. Ondanks het feit dat er reeds veel sterke initiatieven genomen zijn en er een nauwe samenwerking is met de Europese Unie en België, zijn de eerste resultaten teleurstellend. Vooral de economische situatie legt een zware hypotheek op Marokko, de werkloosheid is torenhoog Verder empirisch onderzoek, wanneer er meer resultaten beschikbaar zijn, over dit zeer actuele thema is echter wel nodig om beleidsconclusies te kunnen trekken. Is Morocco evolving from a developing country to a modern democratic state? Based on the characteristics of developing countries compiled by Michael P. Todaro we can conclude that Morocco is still a developing country, but the country is on the right path in the transition to a modern state. King Mohammed VI clearly wants change for his country and shows interest in the needs of all groups of society. The emphasis is placed on democracy and human rights. Despite many strong initiatives already being taken and the close collaboration with the European Union and Belgium, the first results are disappointing. Especially the economic situation is a burden to Morocco, the unemployment is very high. However, further empirical research is necessary when more results are available on this highly topical theme for policy conclusions to be drawn.

Technocratisation and Depoliticisation of Democracy Promotion and Development Aid Ingrid Heidlmayr-Chegdaly 2020-11-24 In den letzten Jahrzehnten wurde die Förderung von Demokratie und Governance zu einem wichtigen Bestandteil der Außenpolitik westlicher Regierungen und multilateraler Organisationen. Nach und nach wurde die externe Demokratieförderung zu einem breiten Forschungsfeld der Politikwissenschaft und der Transformationsforschung. Während sich ein Großteil der wissenschaftlichen Forschung auf Instrumente und Strategien multilateraler Geberinstitutionen wie Weltbank (WB), Internationaler Währungsfonds (IWF) und Europäische Union (EU) konzentriert, ist die Afrikanische Entwicklungsbankgruppe (AfDB) bisher nur wenig erforscht. Die Studie bietet neue empirische Einblicke in die Umsetzung der politischer und entwicklungspolitischer Entwicklungszusammenarbeit für Marokko als größter Empfänger von bilateraler EU-Hilfe im Rahmen der Europäischen Nachbarschaftspolitik (ENP) und trägt zu einer systematischeren Erforschung der Rolle nicht-westlicher Akteure in der Auslandshilfe bei. Der Autor zeigt zum einen, dass die Ziele der Förderung von Demokratie und guter Regierungsführung miteinander konkurrieren und zum anderen die Politikförderung zunehmend technokratisiert und entpolitisiert wird.
